CENSUS REPORT

OF THE

NAGOD STATE

1921.

I. Introductory.—The Census of 1921 was the fifth enumeration of the population of the Nagod State and the third in which the British India Schedule was exactly applied and information which was collected was included in the Imperial Tables. The present Census was taken on the night of the 18th March 1921 simultaneously with all India. The procedure adopted was similar to that of the previous Census. The general outline is given below.

The first step necessary in connection with the arrangements for the Census is the preparation of the General Village Register, i.e., a complete list of all villages and hamlets in existence with the number of houses inhabited and uninhabited in each village and the names of persons available to act as Charge Superintendents, Supervisors and Enumerators. This record was compiled and submitted to the Central India Agency as soon as the decision of the Government of India was communicated to the State that a decennial Census would be taken.

Munshi Bala Parshad, Inspector of Schools, who had previous experience was appointed as State Census Officer and authorised to correspond direct with the Provincial Superintendent of Census. He attended the training class at Sebare with two supervisors and received practical training in the work of enumeration. On return to Nagod he opened similar classes at convenient centres in the State and imparted practical instruction to the Charge Superintendents, Supervisors and Enumerators. The manuals of instructions to Charge Superintendents and Supervisors and instructions to Enumerators in English and Vernacular supplied by the Provincial Superintendent were freely distributed, read and explained. The printed instructions were so complete that there was no need to supplement them by others.

The Census Officer next divided the State into Charges; each Charge into Circles and each Circle into Blocks. There were 10 Charges, 79 Circles and 763 Blocks. The Tahsildars were appointed Charge Superintendents, superior subordinate staff as Supervisors and clerks, schoolmasters, senior students and shop-keepers as Enumerators. The Code rules and instructions for each stage of the Census operations were strictly adhered to.

The Provincial Superintendent of Census visited the State twice. In the first visit he inspected the general arrangements and progress of preliminary work. In the second the knowledge of Enumerators was tested and the entries made by them for Preliminary Enumeration were examined. On both occasions complete satisfaction as to the efficiency of the Census staff, was announced. After the Census proper the provisional totals were collected according to the arrangements previously made and wired to the Census Commissioner for India, Simla and the Provincial Superintendent on the 22nd March.

They totalled 68,190 souls (33,693 males and 34,497 females). After the detailed processes of abstraction and tabulation this figure was found to differ by only 24 persons less or —03 per cent., practically no difference.

No difficulty of any kind was felt in the enumeration. There was general co-operation. The Census Agency worked very satisfactorily and the public made no sort of opposition but answered all questions the enumerators put to them.

For subsequent processes the State deputed Munshi Rasul Bakhsh to the Central Office at Indore, who had worked so well in 1911.

The total expenditure incurred by the State for enumeration and final compilation and report approximately worked up to Rs. 2,166 which gives 6 pies as the cost of per head of population against 3 pies in 1911. The increase is due to abnormally high prices and wages all round.

I am much obliged to the Diwan, Rai Sahib-Pandit Iqbal Kishan, for the personal interest he took in the work which mainly contributed to the satisfactory results. To the Census Officer Munshi Bala Prasad I would tender my best thanks for the efficient arrangements made throughout and the excellent records sent to the head office. My thanks are also due to Munshi Rasul Bakhsh for the care and intelligence with which he compiled the final tables.

II. General.—The Nagod (Unchehra) State is one of the Sanad States in the Baghel Land Political charge of Central India Agency.

III. Area.—It lies between 24° 12 and 24° 19' N. L. and 80° 28' and 80° 53' E. L. and has an area of about 501 square miles with a population of 68,166. The greater part of the territory is situated in the high level plain to the East of Panna Range, but a small portion falls in the hilly tract.

IV. Boundaries.—The State is cut up into two sections, the isolated Pargana of Dhanwai which lies East of Maihar, is separated from the main block and surrounded by the Murwara Tahsil of Jubbulpore District of the Central Provinces. The other parts are bounded on the North by Panna and Sohawal, on the East by Rewa, on the South by Ajaigarh and Maihar and on the West by Panna.

V. Climate and rainfall.—The State shares the general conditions of Baghelkhand experiencing greater extremes of heat and cold than the States in the west of the Agency.

The average rainfall of the State for the last 10 years is 44.5 inches, the highest reached was 54.87 inches in 1917-18, the lowest 30.63 inches was recorded in 1913-14. The heavy fall in 1914-15, 1917-18 and 1919-20 was most injurious to all crops of both Rabi and Kharif.

VI. Administrative Divisions.—For administrative purposes the State is divided into three Parganas of Nagod, Unchehra and Dhanwai.

VII. Density.—The mean density of population for the whole State gives 136 persons to the square mile against 149 in 1911. The decrease of 13 persons since 1911 is chiefly due to (1) high mortality epidemic in 1918, 2) cholera which prevailed throughout the decade except in 1916, 1918 and 1919, 3) scarcity and a pinch of the rising prices of foodstuff. The density for the three earlier Censuses being (1831) 159, (1891) 168 and (1901) 132.

Comparison with the other States of the political charge and contiguous States is given in the inset. Thus in point of density the State has suffered largely through the above causes. Moreover the greater part of the State is covered with sandstone and limestone hills which absorbs about one-half of the total area of the State and compares unfavourably with the sister States of Maihar and Sohawal, but very fairly with Panna and Ajaigarh which are similarly situated.

The relation of population to the cultivable and cultivated area of the State is 2.6 and 1.5 acres per head, respectively.

VIII. Towns and villages.—A town is defined as a place having not less than 5,000 inhabitants and such other localities of less than 5,000 inhabitants as are centres of trade or places of historic or local importance. Nagod the present capital and Unchehra, the old capital, have less than 5,000 population each but being locally important are reckoned as towns. The population of these at successive Censuses has been:—

Town.				1891.	1901.	1911.	1921.
Nagod	...	...	...	3,957	3,887	4,028	3,298
Unchehra	...	...	...	5,442	3,785	4,507	4,339

Both the towns declined during the last decade due no doubt partly to the effects of epidemics of Influenza, Cholera and Plague. The first two played great havoc notwithstanding all that could be done to check them. Nagod which stands on the main road has suffered most due to affected travellers who visited through the town and thereby spread the diseases among the indigenous population.

Villages.—Every revenue village with hamlets dependent on it was treated as a Census village. Excluding Nagod and Unchehra there were in all 325 inhabited villages in the State against 338 in 1911. The decrease is largely due to the influenza but in part to administrative causes.

Table III gives the classification of villages. Villages of "under 500" population, as usual predominate with 59 per cent. of the total population of the State. Their number is 297, 25 villages come under "500—1,000" class and 3 in "1,000—2,000." The average population in all classes except the "1000—2,000" has declined since 1911 showing that the effects of epidemics reached the interior of the State. The average population of a village is 186 against 195 in 1911. Comparison with the figures of the contiguous States is given in the inset.

Rewa	...	249
Nagod	...	186
Maihar	...	204
Sohawal	...	223
Kotli	...	257
Panna	...	226
Ajaigarh	...	236

IX. Houses and Families.—The definition of a House for Census purposes was the same as in 1911. The total number of occupied houses returned was 15,180 against 16,376 in 1911. The difference is due to the fact that many houses became unoccupied during the epidemic of 1918. The average number of persons per house was the same as in 1911, viz, 4 and that of houses per square mile 80 against 33 in 1911.

X. Population and Variation.—Tables II and IV exhibit the population and variation in villages and towns respectively. The total population of the State at the previous Censuses has been 1881, 479,629; 1891, 84,097; 1901, 67,002; 1911, 74,592; 1921, 68,166. The inset gives the variation between each decade. It will be seen that in the first decade the population increased while in the second it declined due to severe famine of 1897. In the next it recovered partially no doubt owing to improved administration but again declined in the last decade, the Influenza being responsible for it.

Decades.	Variations.
1881—1891	+ 5.7
1891—1901	- 20.0
1901—1911	+ 11.2
1911—1921	- 8.6

XI. General Conditions.—During the decade under report the years 1-13-14, 1917-18 and 1918-19 were lean years, but there was no death from starvation and no emigration to any unusual extent. The infection of plague came from Satna in November 1911, and lasted till 20th February 1912. A Cholera epidemic occurred in August 1912 and lingered for several years, causing about 300 deaths. In the year 1918 plague reappeared, but in a very mild form. But Influenza in October and November 1918, accounted for 5,000 reported deaths but the real figure was certainly higher. It penetrated into the heart of the State and left no village untouched. All possible artificial and social measures are being taken to give stimulus to the growth of population. The Rayatwari settlement was started in 1916 and completed in 1919. The present assessment is Rs. 1,31,184 against Rs. 1,20,697 of the previous one. Lac, gold, silver, brass and white metal ornaments, woodwork, pottery, cloth dyeing, extraction of oils, tailory, cloth printing, nut cutters, axes, knives, weeding knives and sickles are manufactured for ordinary needs of the people. Brass, white metal cups and dishes find a ready market outside the State. Some co-operative Sabhas under the ayle of Dun Prabandh Karni Sabhas have been established in several villages. The object of the Sabha is to store seed grain obtained by free contributions from the members and to distribute it at sowing time free of cost to the needy and poor and on light interest to the rest. Its members are the cultivators of the villages. The Sarvahiit Karni Sabha was established in the town of Nagod with the object of helping the needy people. Its members are both officials and non-officials.

XII. Movement of Population.—Table XI gives statistics of birthplace for the population enumerated in the State as a whole. Of the total population 55,481 or 81 per cent., were born in the State, leaving 12,685 immigrants. Of these about 9 per cent. came from Rewa, mostly from Huzar and Raghur-yogagar Tahsils, 3 from Mithar, 2 from Panna and Central Provinces (mostly from Jubbulpore), over one per cent. each from Sohawal and Ajargarh, the remaining one per cent. representing the rest. In all cases the number of female immigrants predominate showing that the State is dependent for wives on those adjoining States and districts.

XIII. Religion.—The religious distribution of the population is given in Tables V and VI. Out of the total population of the State about 97 per cent. are Hindus against 94 in 1911 and over 2 per cent. Mussalmans against 3 in 1911. The Jains number 81 and Christian 1. It will be seen that there has been a decline among Hindus due to decrease in the total population.

XIV. Age, Sex and Civil Condition.—Age.—Table VII gives by 19 age periods, the Sex and Civil Condition for each religion. Similar information for certain selected castes is given in Table XIV which is less elaborate than Table VII. The age statistics are least reliable. This is due to the fact that it is very difficult for an average person to give his exact age off hand since it is not a factor in daily use. The tendency is to state ages in terms of multiples of 5 or 10 or conventional phrases. The term Buchcha is often returned for children over one year of age even as they are still at the breast. In the case of women and especially young unmarried girls there is often misstatement due to apprehensions as regards marriage. In some families people are averse to give the age of young women, married or unmarried. Thus notwithstanding strict instructions vague and inaccurate answers are constantly recorded.

XV Sex.—The record of sex is important in the Census. There are 33,668 males and 34,498 females in the whole State. This gives 102 females to 100 males for all religions against 105 in 1911. The Hindus return the same proportion while the Mussalmans show 103 against 99 in 1911.

XVI. Civil Condition.—There are 104 wives to 100 husbands among Hindus and 105 among Mussalmans against 104 and 96 respectively in 1911.

XVII. Literary.—There are 2,993 literate persons (2,715 males and 278 females) or 4 per cent. of the total population of the State against 3 per cent. in 1911. Of these 35 persons (34 males and 1 female) also have a knowledge of English. Distributed by religion Hindus show 2,524 males and 228 females literate, 78 males and 1 female having a knowledge of English; Musalmans 167 males and 48 females of whom 4 males know English; Jains 23 males and 2 females, 1 male knowing English also.

It would appear that Education has been gradually advancing in the State. The inset shews a comparison of the institutions maintained by the State in 1921 and 1911.

XVIII. Language.—Baghelkhandi is the prevailing dialect in the State, 66,289 persons or 97 per cent. of the total population speaking this tongue, Bundelkhandi is spoken by 1,136, Brij-bhasha by 192, Urdu by 209, Hindi by 69, Oriya by 65, Gondi by 54.

XIX. Infirmities.—Four kinds of infirmity were recorded in this Census, viz., Insanity, Deaf-mutism, Blindness and Leprosy. The total number of afflicted recorded was 160 (67 males and 93 females) as detailed in the inset. The number of the blind far exceeds any other infirmity as usual.

XX. Caste, Tribe or Race.—Table XIII gives statistics of 43 principal castes of Hindus, 1 of Jain, and 4 of Musalmans. The details of minor castes shewn under the head "Others" are given in the Appendix. The prevailing castes and tribes are Brahmans 14 per cent. (Sarwaris predominating forming 94 per cent.) same as in 1911, Chamars coming next with 10 per cent., Kachhis 9 per cent., Kols and Kunbis 7 per cent. each, Rajputs over 6 per cent. among whom Parihars form 60 per cent., Kotwal 4 per cent., Lodhi 3 per cent., Bagris and Banias about 3 per cent., Koli, Teli, Gonds and Gadarias 2 per cent. each, Dhimar, Kumhar, Luhar, Nai, Dhobi, Ahir just over 1 per cent. each.

The genuine agricultural castes are:—Kachhi, Kol, Koli, Kotwal, Lodhi and Kunbi Brahmans and Rajputs also live mainly on agriculture and other castes such as Chamars, Dhimars also resort to agriculture as this is the only means of livelihood in the villages.

XXI. Occupations.—The system introduced in 1911 for the classification of occupations was also followed on this occasion. All occupations have been divided into 4 main classes, 12 sub-classes, 56 orders and 191 groups. Agriculture as usual claims most, 52 per cent. of the total population, Labour 19 per cent., Industry 12 per cent., Trade 4 per cent., Public Administration and Domestic Service about 2 per cent. each. Professions and liberal arts over 1 per cent.
